ABOUT SANDRA PAULSEN

Led by Dr. Sandra Paulsen, Ph.D., this two-day training will explore two distinct forms of neurodiversity.

Sandra Paulsen, Ph.D., is an international instructor, author and illustrator on using EMDR with complex trauma including structural and somatic dissociation and trauma held in implicit memory. She developed the first protocol for the use of EMDR with highly dissociative individuals, publishing cautions about EMDR with dissociation, and for first urging the screening of every client for dissociation before administering EMDR. She has trained thousands of mental health professionals in these special procedures since 1993.

She lives in a log house in the forest on Bainbridge Island, near Seattle, Washington, USA where she does intensive treatment in the three-day format. Sandra is a Fellow of the International Society for the Study of Trauma and Dissociation.

DAY 1

Obsessive-Compulsive Disorder (OCD)

Day 1 will focus on the development and maintenance of OCD. Participants will learn how to integrate EMDR with Exposure and Response Prevention (ERP)—the gold standard for OCD treatment—and, when appropriate, incorporate ego state interventions to enhance outcomes.

Learning objectives:

- Describe six types of OCD variants
- Describe the cycle of anxiety increase through obsessional thinking and decrease through compulsive responses
- Identify an assessment process for obsessions and compulsions
- Design an intervention of exposure to obsessional thoughts and response prevention for compulsive behaviors
- Describe how to integrate exposure and ritual prevention within the eight phases of EMDR
- Identify traumatized ego states as the locus of obsessions and compulsions

DAY 2

Autism Spectrum (Level 1)

Day 2 will center on supporting autistic individuals, particularly those diagnosed with Autism Spectrum Disorder Level 1. Participants will learn about autism beyond DSM-V criteria including how autistic people experience and describe their own neurodiversity. Dr. Paulsen will also review how each phase of EMDR can be adapted to ensure safety and effectiveness. Discussion will include how certain traits or behaviors often labeled as “symptoms” may function adaptively for autistic individuals.

Learning objectives:

- Define DSM-V criteria for autism
- Define autism as it is experienced phenomenologically by autistic individuals
- Discuss four features of autistic nervous systems
- List four common types of trauma experienced by autistic individuals
- Define eight common terms associated with autism such as monotropism, alexithymia, demand avoidance, and more
- Define modifications often needed for each EMDR Phase with autistics
